

North Queens Community School

We are so grateful to be recipients of the Stanley DeWalt tool grant at North Queens Community School! As a small, rural school, having the opportunity to expose our students to hands on work with up-to-date tools and materials to have the ability to design and create endless possible projects to influence and improve their community is highly valuable. Exposing our students to trades and technology allows them to deepen their understanding of career paths and make choices that enhance and inspire their futures. Thank you so much from the Options and Opportunities students and teachers at North Queens Community School!
